XoXo Gallery presents "Sacred Matter: Reclaiming the Garden", a collection of ecofeminist and spiritual works that serve in resistance to the patriarchal systems that have glorified dominance over Earth and women. Through use of the body, botanicals, water, and mysticism, the works of Claudia Capelle, Meiyan Dong, Patricia Edwine Poku, Devra Fox, Julia Gould, Linda Plaisted, and V Walton shed light on the ever-present divine feminine, and the long-held history of women's connection to nature, life cycles, care, and horizontal power structures. "Sacred Matter: Reclaiming the Garden" explores how returning the feminine to the sacred restores the divinity in our bodies, in the land, and in the water, and can lead to a pathway towards social and ecological justice.

Curated by Jacqueline Yvonne Tull and Bridgette Guerzon Mills

About XoXo Gallery:

Founded by twelve members of the Goxxip Girl Collective in September 2024, XoXo Gallery is an up and coming artist-run space with a focus on curation. Committed to showcasing diverse exhibitions and programming, XoXo Gallery operates under a cooperative model, and challenges conventional perspectives, by fostering a platform for innovative artistic expression and incubation. Exhibitions at XoXo Gallery change every six weeks, each curated by a different member of our collective. Located in the BROMO Arts District at 218 West Saratoga St. (Maryland Art Place), our gallery is situated on the 3rd floor.
